

Wine to Go: Summer's Best Cans, Cartons, and Twist-Offs—No Corkscrew Required

by HANNAH HICKOK | 18 HOURS AGO

Now that we've skipped spring and gone straight to summer, we can get busy planning our favorite warm-weather pastime: outdoor drinking. There's nothing better than chilling in a park, at a beach, or on a roof, except maybe chilling in a park, at a beach, or on a roof with some ice-cold vino to go along with our snacks, grilling, music, or weed.

The problem: Not every bottle is created equal, and most aren't exactly outdoor-friendly (hand up if you've brought a stealthy beer or wine bottle to the park, only to realize you forgot the opener), so we decided to do the hard work of researching and taste-testing the best wines to go for you. And we got input from pros, including Michelle Bisciegli, wine director of NYC's popular Blue Hill restaurant, and Trisha Antonsen, chief cocktail officer of Drizly, an online alcohol delivery service.

Below, check out our reviews of the newest wines that don't require a corkscrew:

MORE: 30 of the Best Outdoor Outfit Ideas to Take You Through Summer

Be Bordo Cabernet Sauvignon ($11.99)

A press release told us we could expect this French brand that recently launched its Bordeaux in the US to be “medium-bodied with intense, deep flavors and a hint of spiciness.” Nailed it: We editors liked it; to us it tasted tart, spicy, and dry—all in a good way.